

Poppin Future Plan

User stories not addressed:

8: As a music-loving user, I want to be able to filter my feed with a “Music” tag so that I can look at content specific to music.

10: As a user who prefers a small circle of friends, I want the ability to make my profile private so that only people I approve of can see the media that I consume.

12: As a registered user, I want to explore trends by accessing the "Trending" section on top of the app, so that I can find popular trends that interest me.

16: As a user who likes to partake in civil discussion, I want to be able to block users who post negative or harmful content, so that I can have a comfortable experience with Poppin.

17: As a user only interested in books, I want to be able to filter other people’s profiles by books, so I can exclusively see their posts about books.

Future Development:

If we were to continue working on Poppin, we would focus on completing the remaining user stories, but have some particularly important features below:

- We would continue to work on the Profile to allow the user to set privacy settings such as setting it to Public/Private, and the ability to block other users. As well as being able to access the profile of other user’s and filter their posts by tags.
- We would also continue to work on the feed to include filtering features, such as a trending section, filter by the post tags, and filter by following/all users.
- We would want to create a more intuitive way of creating posts, where images could be uploaded directly to Poppin instead of requiring a URL from an online image.
- If Poppin was released to the public, we would want to improve our database to store user data more efficiently, in the case that Poppin gains enough users to significantly slow down database and server performance. We would also want to increase the security of Poppin, such as including stricter password requirements, password recovery, and password hashing.
